Many schools now use digital tools to help students learn. Online lessons, which are available at different times, allow learners to study more flexibly. However, not all students have equal access to devices or the internet. Schools and international organisations can cooperate to provide equipment and training. These efforts can make education more inclusive.

17. What makes online lessons flexible?

18. Name one barrier to online learning.

19. How can schools and organisations help?

20. Find a word meaning “including more people”.

E. Writing. Write 120–150 words about how technology can create fairer learning opportunities. Include a passive sentence and a relative clause.
